A BLESSING.

A little girl had blessed me:
I wonder what it can be;
It seems a simple thing,
But it means a great deal;
She's now eighteen years old,
So I shall not be surprised,
When I see her in my ear.
"God bless you dear."

How often meet with wonder:
What can she know?
She seems to be the measure
Of the world; that's where so
True the saying is, "If it's
True, it must be from heaven; hell,
We want no such glory lives
In the world that it gives."

How I used to long for her—
How I used to love her;
How I used to think of her;
How I used to dream of her;
How I used to dream of her;
How I used to dream of her;

How I used to dream of her;

How I used to dream of her;
